DUESTROW'S WILL.

The Last Testament of the Millionaire
Probated.

IT PROVES TO BE A RATHER REMARK-ABLE DOCUMENT.

A Reserve Fund of $500,000 in Government Bonds to be Managed by a Trust Company for the Heirs' Benefit—A Familiar Contingency—Suit Against the Nelson Distilling Co.

The will of Louis Duestrow, the millionaire who died suddenly last Monday in the office of the Laclede Gas-Light Co., was admitted to probate to-day. To his son Arthur he leaves his books, watches and jewelry. Certain real estate is left to his wife and daughter, Hilda Duestrow. The remainder of his estate he leaves in trust to the Nelson Trust Co. for the following purposes: He orders set aside out of the estate $500,000 worth of United States 4 per cent bonds to form a "reserve fund." One-half of the bonds are in the St. Louis Safe Deposit Co., and the other half in the Missouri Safe Deposit Co. He orders that the reserve fund be kept intact until the death of his wife, son and daughter, the interest to be paid to them in equal shares. When the bonds mature, and are cashed by the government he orders the money to be invested in real estate, or other securities. Should there be any shrinkage of the reserve fund, he orders the trustee to make good the deficiency out of the income of the reserve fund. He orders that the income of the reserve fund be paid to the survivors or survivor. Should one die the remaining two get the income each, and should two die, the remaining one will receive all the income from the $500,000.

On the marriage of his daughter, the testator orders $50,000 to be paid to her, either in cash or securities, the amount to come out of the residuary estate. The will recites that the testator has already advanced $50,000 to his son, Arthur. In the event of either his wife, son or daughter becoming in need of ready money the testator orders that the trustee of the reserve fund apply to the trustee of the estate a sum not to exceed $10,000 shall be paid to the applicant, to be charged against his or her share at the final distribution of the estate. The will is admitted to probate after a careful investigation, and it being demonstrated that the will was not procured by extortion.

Out of the income of the remainder of the estate the testator orders $5,000 a year each paid to his wife, son and daughter. When the wife, son and daughter of testator shall have died he orders that the whole estate be divided into two equal parts, and the heirs of his two children share and share alike per stirpes. That is the estate is to be divided into two equal parts, and the two sets of heirs receive equal shares of their respective half. The will is admitted to probate after a careful investigation, and it being demonstrated that the will was not procured by extortion.

The estate is said to be worth $1,000,000. Mr. Duestrow was a large holder of granite. He was a native of Germany, and came to this country in 1848. He was a successful business man, and died at the age of 54.

Mr. Catherine Stehle's Will.

The will of Catherine Stehle was admitted to probate to-day. She sets apart $100 for a monument and gives $50 to the rectory of St. Nicholas' Catholic Church at Nineteenth street and Lucas avenue, to be used for masses. Her household, kitchen, and laundry are left to her daughter, Lucie, and her son, Arthur. She leaves to her daughter, Lucie, the sum of $1,000. She leaves to her son, Arthur, the sum of $1,000. She leaves to her daughter, Lucie, the sum of $1,000. She leaves to her son, Arthur, the sum of $1,000.

A Land Suit.

The damage suit to which the C. B. & A. railroad and the Union Stock Yard Co. are parties is to be tried in the St. Louis court to-day. The suit is for damages to the stock yard property. The suit against the stock yard was commenced in 1880 and the court appointed James M. Carpenter, Augustus H. Schutte and Anthony Kneale, Commissioners. The suit is for damages to the stock yard property. The suit against the stock yard was commenced in 1880 and the court appointed James M. Carpenter, Augustus H. Schutte and Anthony Kneale, Commissioners.

Suit by an Assignee.

Louis H. Haase, Assignee of Charles A. Fischer, filed suit to-day against the Nelson Distilling Co. Frederick J. Cornet, Lynch Bros. and Hertz & Co. are defendants. The suit is for damages to the stock yard property. The suit against the stock yard was commenced in 1880 and the court appointed James M. Carpenter, Augustus H. Schutte and Anthony Kneale, Commissioners.

Warrant Against Tracey.

A warrant for murder in the first degree was issued to-day against John Tracey for the murder of Van, Schreiner in Cuddy Mack's saloon last Sunday night and the prisoner was at once transferred from the calaboose to the jail.

John Quinn Discharged.

Judge Claiborne discharged John Quinn to-day, holding that the prisoner had killed Anthony Roland in self-defense. The homicide occurred in Ashman's saloon on Ninth street and case was called on the evening of the 26th of last December.

Court Notes.

A judgment for $13,356 was given in Judge Fisher's court yesterday against Cliff and James Richardson and W. H. and L. E. Collins, bondsmen, for the arrest of Taylor, as guardian of Joseph Jackson, a brother of Alice Jackson, who gained celebrity by running away from her marriage. The judgment was for $12,000 brought in by his guardian, Taylor, for the arrest of Taylor, as guardian of Joseph Jackson, a brother of Alice Jackson, who gained celebrity by running away from her marriage.

The jury in the suit of John M. Roberts and his wife against Dr. Pinkney French of Mexico, Mo., for $5,000 damages for alleged malpractice in treating Mrs. Roberts returned a verdict yesterday.

The Western Leather Co. filed articles of incorporation to-day with a capital stock of $50,000.

Letters of administration were granted to-day to Dina Lochmoller, widow of the late Frederick W. Lochmoller, which is valued at $1,000.

LENTEN PLEASURES.

How Society Is Whiling Away the Dull Period.

NOTHING BUT VERY SMALL ENTERTAINMENTS GIVEN.

Mrs. Charles D. Moody entertains her friends with a "George Washington Party," and Mrs. B. Webster gives her friends a "Dickens Examination Party"—Dolings in the Social World.

The father of his country has not been depicted by those in search of literary diversion. Mrs. Charles D. Moody gave recently a "George Washington Party," to which she invited a large number of her lady friends. A number of questions concerning the life and prominent character of Dickens' and other of the great have been prepared and suitable prizes were awarded to those who proved to be best informed in regard to the events of those stirring times.

Webster gave a very interesting "Dickens Examination Party" recently at her lovely suburban home. There was quite a large company of guests assembled, and seventy questions concerning Dickens' characters were asked by Mrs. H. P. Richardson and Miss Lillian Wagner, these two ladies having been requested by the hostess to prepare the program.

The dinner tables were pretty well covered with cards and painted by Miss Hurler Webster, who was having portrayed upon the reverse of the cards the prominent character of Dickens' novels. The first prize, "Life of Dickens," was awarded to Mrs. Richard Goudy; the second prize fell to Mrs. Jackson; and the third prize, "A Christmas Carol," was won by Mrs. Chas. A. Baker.

Among the guests were Mrs. Robert Adams, Misses F. C. Wood, Sherman Pike, James F. Allen, L. H. Bragg, Florida Watts, A. S. Landon, Dickinson, Sutherland, Kaufman, Mrs. Liddy Blackmer, Aldrich, Rhodes, Harrell, Gilliland, Stockbridge and Misses Emma Thompson and Florida B. Watts.

The host and hostess were assisted by their daughter, Mrs. Charles Blake, who was seated in her wedding dress, and their wedding robe. Mrs. Watson wore black silk and lace, and carried a large bunch of pink roses. The house was decorated with many flowers.

Mrs. Blair entertained the Souvenir Spoon Club Tuesday, at her residence with 1000 guests. Mrs. Papin, of Laclede avenue, and Mrs. May Layton entertained the La Tosca Club at its last meeting.

Mrs. James G. Elaine, Jr., lying for several hours between life and death.

New York, March 10.—For seven hours Mrs. James G. Elaine, Jr., lay between life and death yesterday with three doctors gallantly fighting for her life, says a morning paper. At 8 o'clock yesterday morning the old nurse attempted to arouse Mrs. Elaine after dressing the boy for his breakfast. Mrs. Elaine was in a comatose condition, her eyes closed, and gasping for breath. She was unresponsive to the doctor's efforts.

Mrs. Elaine has, as you know, a bad arm, and as it is the turning of her arm that she is unable to move, she is in a dangerous condition. The nurse ran to Mrs. Elaine's room and screamed out "Marie is dying."

HE WAS A NAVAL OFFICER.

Lieut. Hetherington's Victim Brought Death Upon Himself.

New York, March 10.—George Grover Robinson, whom Lieut. W. Hetherington, United States Navy, killed on Feb. 12 for his attentions to Mrs. Hetherington, was a business man of excellent standing in Yokohama and also one of the leaders of the foreign society. He went to Yokohama several years ago from England and became cashier of the Hong Kong Bank. He resigned from the bank later and opened an exchange broker's office. He paid a good deal of attention to his business but did not let it interfere with his very exacting social duties. He had a handsome figure and his face was much admired by women despite the fact that he was a naval officer.

Lieut. Hetherington, who is an Iowa appointee, but a few years out of the academy, was ordered on his present cruise in May of last year. He had got his promotion to a lieutenant of the junior grade in 1887 and had been married a short time afterwards so it is said. Mrs. Hetherington was a very beautiful woman, and longer than since last fall, and the flirtation with Mr. Robinson was of very recent date. From the story in the dispatches of Mrs. Robinson's recognition Mrs. Hetherington's wife, Lieut. Hetherington found, and accuses Mrs. Hetherington of nothing more than that she was a naval officer.

None of the naval officers here is acquainted with the Hetheringtons and none of them was willing to express an opinion of the affair for publication with his name. But the sentiment was that if Lieut. Hetherington acted as he did, he was a naval officer and that he should be treated as such.

Lieut. Hetherington showed great forbearance. The man persisted in trying to come to Mrs. Robinson's room, and Lieut. Hetherington, as his protector, could not in honor let her remain in the room. Lieut. Hetherington did his plain and simple duty as an officer of the United States Navy. He was conducted most becomingly to an officer and a gentleman.

Minister and Opera Singer Married.

CLEVELAND, O., March 10.—Grace Kearney, an opera singer, and Rev. W. L. Stearns were married here last night. The bride was on a sick bed at the time of her marriage. Physicians say her illness is fatal and her death is momentarily expected.

Why Boys Should Mimic Men.

Because these new spring styles of Baltimore merchant tailor-made suits for young men are so different from the old styles, the greatest garment maker in the city, J. B. Steward, a farmer residing near here, has just died a horrible death. Some time ago his pet dog showed signs of rabies. The dog was confined and soon died. In attempting to cure him Steward allowed some froth on the dog's mouth to penetrate a wound on his hand. The hand soon swelled as well as the arm and shoulder, and Steward went raving mad. He was conducted most becomingly to an officer and a gentleman.
